

ORCHARD ADMITS HAYWOOD WASN'T IN ONE OF HIS PLOTS

State's Witness in Chief in Steunenberg Murder Trial Answering Question Put by Defense Makes an Important Admission.

BOISE, June 10.—The defenders of William D. Haywood, continuing their cross-examination of Harry Orchard, are making a strong attempt to show that the Independence Station outrage, instead of being procured by the Western Federation of Miners, was a "plant" of the enemies of the federation intended to be comparatively harmless and converted by mischance into a great tragedy.

Orchard has testified that he and Adams pulled the trigger of the mine before the train reached the station, and the defense seeks to make it appear that it was planned to blow up the station, not only before the train arrived, but before the non-union men working in the neighboring mines came down to the train.

Orchard, in explanation of his act in setting off the mine before the train arrived, swore that Sherman Parker, of the Western Federation of Miners, had a friend on the train—one Bush, who had previously been a friendly witness in the train-wrecking case—and asked that one be taken not to injure him. Orchard also denied that the mine owners or the railroad detective managers had planned the explosion.

An Important Admission.
Attorney Richardson, for the defense, succeeded today in getting an admission from Orchard that in at least one of his dynamic plots Haywood had no part. The witness, while claiming that Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone were interested in the blowing up of the Victor mine, acknowledged they had nothing to do with the formation of the plot.

The defense had previously shown that, as far as the witness knew, Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone had nothing to do with planning the murder of Lyte Gregory.

Again Confesses Arson.
In the course of the cross-examination, Orchard admitted he had burned his cheese factory near Brighton, in Canada, and collected $600 insurance.

Corrects Two Statements.
Immediately after going on the stand at 9.55 this morning Orchard asked permission to correct two statements made by him on Saturday, one to the effect that "Bill" Eastery and himself had made bombs with "Petit" done at Apple Creek, and the other that he and Steve Adams had carried their shotguns in holsters when they were stalking Gov. Peabody.

He said "Bill" Eastery and not "Bill" Eastery, made the experiments with him and Adams did not carry their guns in holsters.

Attorney Richardson brought out the fact that Orchard was in conference with Detective McFarland this morning and that Orchard was in conference with McFarland and Attorney Hawley yesterday, and that each morning he appeared on the stand he visits Hawley's office, but the witness denied that he corrected his testimony on any suggestion from either Hawley or McFarland. He said he told Hawley he had made a mistake in his testimony and asked if he should correct it, and Hawley told him to do so.

Process Religion.
"Didn't McFarland speak to you about the method by which you could withstand cross-examination?" demanded Attorney Richardson, who has handled the cross-examination throughout.
"No, sir," replied Orchard, "but he spoke of what gave me strength to go through the examination."

Orchard has professed religion.
"Now, then," roared Richardson, "didn't you make this correction because you discovered that Eastery is here and Akerman is in addition?"
"No, sir," I knew Eastery was here all the time."

Orchard said that he had heard that Akerman is in Golden, Nev.
Consulted Mine Owners.
Attorney Richardson next demanded to know of Orchard what he had talked about to Nelson Franklin and E. Carlton, of the Mine Owners' Association. He said he had a certificate of deposit in a bank which had closed and he heard these men were buying such certificates.

Orchard was going into details of the conversation when he was stopped by Richardson, who declared the matter immaterial. This brought a protest from Senator Borah, who said: "You asked for this; now take it as it comes."

"I didn't ask for a lecture," retorted the attorney for the defense, judging Wood said the prosecution could go into the matter on redirect examination. He desired and Orchard was not allowed to proceed.

Orchard denied that he had ever discussed the mining troubles with Franklin and Carlton. He entered the same hotel as to "Kid" Waters, Frank N. Leonard, A. J. Holman and Major Tom McCallister.

Richardson next took Orchard over the ground preceding the blowing up of the Independence depot. The witness said he had first discussed the matter with Parker and Davis, the strike managers in the Clippie Creek district, but he could not recall the exact date or place. Haywood whispered constantly in his attorney's ear as this part of the cross-examination proceeded, prompting questions from time to time. Orchard said he later discussed the Independence matter with Parker and Davis at the Independent Hotel in Denver and in the lobby of the hall where the miners' convention was in session. The witness declared that it was because Haywood's control of the Federation was in Jeopardy.

Orchard said it was planned to blow up the depot before the arrival of the train. This was arranged to save the trainmen.
"And you didn't intend to blow up anybody but just this depot, which was simply a stopping place without an agent or anybody there?"
"Yes, sir; we intended blowing up the non-union men who took the train there."

Wasn't Thinking How Many.
"Why did you want to save the trainmen?" asked Richardson, with significant infection.
"Sherman Parker said that one of the men on the train had been a good witness for him in the trials and he did not want him hurt."

"But this was the same train you felt sure about not being selected to wreck?"
"Yes, sir."

Orchard denied that he had talked to railroad detective Scott about how plans to blow up the depot and save the train. He also denied that it was on Scott's account he agreed to save the train.
"You expected to kill fifty men that night?"
"I didn't know how many."

"You thought the more the merrier, didn't you?"
"I wasn't thinking about it."

"You didn't care whether it was one or one hundred, did you?"
"I wasn't thinking about it," repeated the witness, somewhat sullenly.
Draws a Diagram.
Attorney Richardson asked Orchard to make a pencil sketch of the Independence depot, the railroad tracks and the direction in which he ran after the explosion.

The witness promptly complied, drawing a diagram with steady hand.
Orchard said that after the explosion he went to Denver with Johnny Neville and the latter's four-year-old son. On the trip the elder Neville charged Orchard with the crime.
"Did the boy hear this?" asked Richardson.
"We tried to talk to him couldn't."

"But you were all three together?"
"Now, from all you have said and that you know, these defendants had nothing to do with planning the Victor explosion," suggested Richardson.

Defendant Not a Plotter.
"Nothing other than to pay for it," replied Orchard.
"I limited my question as to plotting and planning," said Richardson. "They had nothing to do with planning the Victor explosion or the killing of Lyte Gregory."

"No, no far as I know," replied the witness.
"Then they had nothing to do with any of your outrages until the Independence Depot affair?"
"I believe they had something to do with it, yes, sir."

"I mean as to planning."

"No, they didn't plan it."

As to the Independence Depot affair.

CONVENTION OF MINERS SENDS ITS GREETINGS.

DENVER, June 10.—The Convention of Miners, in session here today, sent the following telegram to Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone at Boise:

"Fifteenth annual convention sends greetings. Confident of your innocence, and we are with you until your honor is vindicated and your freedom assured."
(Signed) C. E. MASON, Chairman.

Orchard in the convention that the leaders wanted "something pulled off."

Richardson next jumped back to the Lyte Gregory murder in Denver, wanting to know if Orchard had not gone to the Adams Hotel that evening.

Didn't Jump Out of Window.
"No, sir," replied the witness. "I first went to Pettibone's back yard and burned the sawed-off shotgun and then went home."

Orchard denied he had ever jumped from a window of the Adams Hotel while Chief Loomis, of the Denver detective force, was looking for him.

After a long line of questioning, which developed little that was material, Attorney Richardson asked permission to
